About Oxford Brookes University

The Business School at Oxford Brookes University is one of the UK's principal providers of management education for the hospitality industry, with an impressive international reputation. We maintain strong links within the industry to ensure that programmes are kept up-to-date and relevant.

When you study at the Business School at Oxford Brookes University you join one of the most innovative undergraduate programmes in the country. Every one of our courses is made up from both compulsory and optional modules, which makes it easy to tailor the modular programme to your requirements. Each course also offers the opportunity to do a work placement.

As an undergraduate, you can choose to study one subject. We call that a single honours degree. Or you choose to study two subjects and we call that a combined honours degree. If you choose a single honours course, you will study one subject in depth. This will prepare you to be an expert in your chosen field.

If you choose to combine a business related subject with another subject, you can develop an existing passion into a rewarding career. At Brookes you can tailor a combined degree programme to meet your specific interests or needs by splitting your study time equally between both subjects, or by majoring in one of the two subjects. If you choose to major in one subject, your accompanying minor subject will account for a third to a quarter of your overall work.

News:

In recognition of its excellence in learning, teaching and assessment practice, the Business School won a grant of £4.5 million to establish a Centre for Excellence in Teaching and Learning. The award has been used to build a new undergraduate centre, and establish networks with alumni, employers and industry experts as Oxford Brookes continues to reinvest in quality and excellence for its students.
